

Eid Al-Fitr

Eid Al-Fitr is a Muslim festival that marks the end of Ramadan: the holy month of fasting.

What Is Ramadan?

Ramadan is in the ninth month of the Islamic lunar calendar. The festival begins at different times for Muslims depending on when the New Moon is first sighted. Ramadan lasts from dawn until sunset for 29 or 30 days. It is a very important time for Muslims and it is celebrated all over the world. During Ramadan, Muslims ask for forgiveness, pray regularly and practise self-control. It is a time of fasting for Muslims as fasting is one of the five duties called pillars that Muslims obey. Another name for fasting is 'Sawm'.

How Do Muslims Mark the End of Ramadan?

The end of Ramadan is a big celebration called 'Eid Al-Fitr': The Festival of the Breaking of the Fast. Muslims celebrate the end of fasting and thank Allah (God) for the strength given to them throughout Ramadan. Eid Al-Fitr officially begins when the New Moon is first seen in the sky and lasts for up to four days.

Did You Know...?

An estimated 2.1 billion Muslims across the globe will celebrate Eid Al-Fitr to mark the end of Ramadan.

Why Do Muslims Fast?

Fasting is intended to help teach Muslims to focus their attention on Allah (God), to be self-disciplined and to be generous. It also reminds them of the suffering of the poor, who may not get to eat well.

Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) was one of the first Muslims to fast and other Muslims follow his example.

Each day during the month of Ramadan, Muslims all over the world do not eat or drink from dawn until sunset. At the end of the day, Muslim families will often all eat together and celebrate their day of fasting.

Did You Know...?

In some parts of the world, Eid Al-Fitr is known as 'sweet Eid' because many Muslims like to celebrate the end of fasting by enjoying sweet treats, such as biscuits and pastries.

Why Are There Two Eids?

The Islamic festivals of Eid Al-Fitr and Eid Al-Adha are often both shortened and referred to as 'Eid' (another word for 'feast' or 'festival'). However, the two festivals take place at different times of the year and are different in the way in which they are celebrated. Eid Al-Adha celebrates the end of the pilgrimage (Hajj) — the fifth pillar of Islam. Eid Al-Adha, like other events in the Muslim calendar, follows the lunar cycle and occurs around two calendar months after Eid Al-Fitr.

5. What is baklava?

Baklava is a traditional Turkish pastry made with nuts and sweetened with honey (often eaten to mark the end of fasting for Ramadan).

6. Look at the section called Why Are There Two Eids?

Discuss why you think that this section has been included in the text.

Pupils' own responses, such as: This section may have been included because people could have heard of 'Eid' and not realised that there were two different Eid celebrations observed by the followers of Islam. This provides a useful summary of the differences between them.

7. Explain why it is not possible to predict the exact date that Eid Al-Fitr will begin each year.

Pupils' own responses, such as: It is not possible to predict the exact date that Eid Al-Fitr will begin each year because it depends on the lunar calendar and the sighting of the first New Moon, which cannot be determined exactly in advance.

8. Fasting is intended to help teach Muslims to focus their attention on Allah, to be self-disciplined and to be generous.

Explain why fasting requires 'self-discipline'.

Pupils' own responses, such as: Fasting requires self-discipline because people may find it hard not to eat or drink during daylight hours. They would have to resist the temptations to break their fast in order to satisfy their thirst and hunger.

9. Based on what you've read in the text, why do you think that a crescent-shaped Moon is a symbol of the Islamic faith?

Pupils' own responses, such as: I think a crescent-shaped Moon is a symbol of the Islamic faith because Muslims use the lunar calendar to determine when important events (such as Ramadan and Eid Al-Fitr) fall.

What Is Ramadan?

Ramadan is in the ninth month of the Islamic lunar calendar. The festival begins at different times for Muslims depending on when the New Moon is first sighted. It lasts from dawn until sunset for 29 or 30 days. Ramadan is a very important time for Muslims and is celebrated all over the world. During Ramadan, Muslims request forgiveness, pray for direction and try to cleanse themselves through self-discipline and great acts of faith.

The Five Pillars of Islam are the five core beliefs and practices that are considered to be mandatory in Islam; they help Muslims to maintain a good relationship with Allah (God). Ramadan represents an observance of the fourth pillar of faith: fasting (known in Islam as 'Sawm').

How Do Muslims Mark the End of Ramadan?

Muslims mark the end of Ramadan with a large festival called 'Eid Al-Fitr'. The word 'Eid' translates into English as 'feast' or 'festival' and the term 'Al-Fitr' means 'the breaking of the fast'. Muslims celebrate the end of fasting and thank Allah for the strength given to them throughout Ramadan.

What Dishes Are Eaten to Celebrate Eid Al-Fitr?

In some parts of the world, Eid Al-Fitr is known as 'sweet Eid' and is synonymous with eating sweet treats to mark the end of the abstinence of Ramadan.

Baklava

In Turkey, many people enjoy eating baklava: a traditional pastry made with nuts and sweetened with honey.

Dates

The naturally sweet date is a traditional and popular first food choice for people when breaking their Ramadan fast.

In Iraq and Saudi Arabia, dates are an important ingredient in kleicha biscuits, which are very popular during celebrations such as Eid Al-Fitr.

Eid Biscuits

Many countries prepare biscuits to celebrate Eid Al-Fitr and these cookies take on a variety of forms. In Palestine, for example, it is popular to bake Eid biscuits (known as 'ghraybeh') stuffed with pine nuts or almonds.

As with Ramadan, Eid Al-Fitr commences at the first sight of a sliver of a crescent-shaped Moon; if a New Moon is not visible, Ramadan would continue for another day.

How Is Eid Al-Fitr Celebrated?

On the first morning of the celebration, many Muslims gather in local mosques or open-air locations to partake in special prayers and break their fast. Muslims dress in their finest clothes for what will be their first daylight meal in a while. While there, some Muslims will exchange gifts and greeting cards. Celebrations typically continue up to four days. Common greetings may include 'Eid Mubarak' (Blessed Eid) or 'Eid Said' (Happy Eid).

Celebrations vary from country to country but typically include gatherings to observe the New Moon, decorating the interior and exterior of homes, familial visits, preparing and eating special foods and delicacies, neighbourhood parties and donning special, new clothes.
